

Chiereme Fortune

SPOKEN WORD ARTIST

Chiereme's name is Nigerian, meaning "gift from God," and that's exactly what she aspires to be through her work as an artist. Chiereme has served on stages with international poets, represented the DMV area as an ambassador and feature artist, and developed community partnerships to use the arts to advocate for change and awareness in the areas of domestic violence, sexual assault and human trafficking throughout Maryland, D.C., Virginia, Tennessee and Atlanta. Her poetry spans a variety of topics and her love for writing touches all areas of her life to include working as the Communications and Outreach Specialist at Bowie State University in the Office of the President as well as working with small businesses, brands and non-profits to develop engaging content. She is also the founder of becoming the woman.com, a platform for sharing resources and connecting women to their God given purpose. Chiereme is an active member of Zion Church (Pastor and Mrs. Keith Battle) and serves regularly on the Praise and Worship Team and various ministries.
